-The prevailing discontent among European working people has become very serious in Wales, where a gigantic strike is imminent. It is stated that in this expected demonstration seventy thousand colliers are concerned. The great iron interest of Great Britain, which has been so prosperous of late, would suffer from such a strike.

-The French government, it is reported, has just purchased the secret of the composition of an absolutely indelible ink, which re sists the action of every known chemical agent. This ink will accordingly not only be used on all stamped paper in the postal service and the revenue service, but in the recording of all acts of the Assembly; it will also be sold with stamps in all the small shops.

-The evidence of Garvey in the Tweed trial in New York on Saturday, showed that wit- view, and contend that any license system, ness was instructed to make out his bills, amounting to $395,000, so that thirty-five per cent. of their face would pay him. His bills were arranged by Ingersoll, Woodward and Watson, and when money was obtained, Woodward made deposit in the Broadway Bank in favor of Tweed.

-Through the "ring" arrangements the nitude, the entire sum reaching over one hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars. Under the reform regime the last year this enormons debt of the city government was reduced near nine millions of dollars, and it is to be hoped, with the ald of the independent press, that this reduction may continue until file debt is reduced to a reasonable amount. -The Hon. L. V. Bogy, who has just been elected to the United States Senate from Missouri, starts with a good platform. In his speech, returning thanks for his election, he in moving in a matter of deep commercial pledges himself to the support of economical government, decentralization, amnesty, and The committee of Seven is composed of defence of local industrial interests. Mr. Bogy was formerly mayor of St. Louis, and is a man of considerable distinction as a thorough business man. -The directors of the Erie Railway have passed a resolution authorizing the issue of Council, which body may, in return, give the ten millions of convertible bonds for the pur- reasons why the recommendations of the pose of improving the road, reducing the gauge and laying double tracks. It is stated The public will then have an understanding that it is more than probable that the gauge of the road would be changed from a broad to a narrow one from Buffale to Utica. There is all things we caution the Council and the already a third rail from Elmira to Waverly, one side of the double line extending from Amira to Corning. This would enable the Erie to connect with the Lehigh Valley Rail- flinching. There have been over many road, thus giving a through narrow gauge flashes in the pan during the past two or road from Buffalo to Philadelphia and the three years.

South. There might be a third rail laid in time from Elmira to New York. This movement on the part of Erie, it is stated, is absolutely necessary to enable it to compete with River Railroad, under the management of Commodore Vanderbilt. At a recent meeting of the directors of the New York Central, it was determined to issue forty million dollars in bonds, ten million dollars of which should be in sterling, for the purpose of raising funds to lay two extra tracks along the entire line.

-A Washington telegram says: "The decision of the postmaster-general that mail matter not fully prepaid at the office of its mailing had to pay double postage, even though one full rate is prepaid, has met with such general opposition and censure that the House committee on postoffices took up the question for discussion on Thursday, and decided unanimously, except one vote, that Mr. Creswell's construction of the law was an improper one. The question of the reduction of letter postage to two cents for each half ounce was discussed by the committee at length, and seems to be favorably regarded. or longer, for each line of solid nonparell: 1 The postmaster-general is understood to favor agree to the proposition for the prepayment of newspaper postage, in order to avoid the transportation of large quantities of newspapers, which are never paid for, and not taken out of the office."

The Death of Bulwer.

What a host of recollections is awakened by the curt telegram announcing that Bulwer, the English povelist, is dead!" The brilliantly successful career of well nigh seventy years is ended at last.

More than half a century ago Edward Bulwer first appeared in print, and his latest work, the "Lost Tales of Miletus," was published only seven years since. The veteran writer did not lag superfluous on the stage. Age gave more breadth to his thought, and new cunning to his pen. The sentimentalism, not unmixed with morbid humor, of his younger days, ripened with time, and gave the world, in place of "Falkland" and of "Alice," "My Novel" and the "Caxtons." Nor was Bulwer distinguished as a novelist alone. The long roll, blazoned with the names of "Ernest Maltravers," of "Rienzi," of the "Last Days of Pompeii," of "Eugene "Aram," of "Pelham" and "What will he do "with it," is not his sole title to fame. From him came the "Lady of Lyons" and "Riche-"lieu," which hold their place on the stage as firmly as when they took London by storm thirty-five years ago. As a political writer Mr. Lytton won considerable distinction; as an orator his only equal was Gladstone. Forty years ago he entered Parliament, and in 1858 he occame Secretary of feminine jawelry which has almost gone out of State for the Colonies. And he had his reward. In 1838 he was created a baronet, and in 1866 he was raised to the peerage as Baron Lytton. His life was full of honor, and his death leaves vacant a niche which no living man can fill. To be what Bulwer was, his successor must live as he lived, and in the times in which he lived. The genius of these days will not give the world another Bulwer, any more than it will give another Dickens. These men did their work, and did it well, and, unless the years can be rolled back, none shall take their > place. It cannot be said that Bulwer in his best known romances did aught to elevate his race or his art. Such, perhaps, was not his aim. It contented him to expose the warring of passion, the strife of love and hate, the sudden fall to earth and the rising with new strength; and surely, in his historical ro mances, he breathed new life in what is dead, and gave to Harold and the Kingmaker the freshness of the present joined to the misty charms of the past. In his later works he had a higher purpose. They were books such as gentlemen write and gentlemen read; joining the knowledge of the sage tothe polished wit of the courtier.

Lord Bulwer is succeeded by his only son Edward Robert Bulwer, best known as "Owen Meredith." The mantle of the dead man falls upon no unworthy suchilers.

The License Law.

The Committee of Seven waited on Mayor Wagener on Saturday, and submitted to him ment on that hour, so that from end to end of the preamble and resolutions, relating to the License Law, adopted by the Chamber of Commerce on the previous day. Mayor Wagener, upon a mature consideration of the circumstances, consented to extend the time for taking out licenses until the meeting of the City Council on Tuesday, at which meeting the Committee of Seven are expected to present their views and recommendations.

-This whole matter of the License Law is surrounded with difficulties, growing mainly out of differences and divisions of opinion. A large body of citizens object to the law in toto, because they believe that it presses with undue weight upon persons of small means, and because they hold it to be an unconstitutional law, to which the people should not submit. Others take a wider except as a police regulation, is a restriction upon trade, and so injures the city. Others say that the License Law reaches a class of citizens who would otherwise escape from taxation. Others support the License Law because they do not see any way in which the deficit in revenue, caused City of New York ran up a debt of great mag. by its collapse or repeal, could be met, except by a tax upon real estate which already has its full burden to carry. There are, indeed, as many shades of opinion as there are thinking men, and the subject is the more complicated by the fact that hundreds of licenses have already been taken > out. We cordially approve of the action of the Chamber of Commerce. That hody did not exceed its authority, and only did its duty, interest which off-cts its every member. sagacious men who earnestly desire to solve the question amicably. We trust, therefore, that the Committee will ponder the question and submit it, in all its aspects, to the City Committee shall or shall not be adopted of the matter, and will do no injustice to either the Committee or the Council. Above Committee against taking a position which they are not prepared to maintain without

A Struggle for Life.

The history of the State Lunatic Asylum for the past year, as given in the report of Superintendent Ensor, is full of interest. A liberal appropriation was made for the support of the asylum, but not one dollar of it could be obtained from the bankrupt treasury. Dr. Ensor had four hundred helpless lunatics to care for, and, again and again, the moment seemed to have come when they must be left to starve, or be cast adrift in the bleak streets of the capital. That the institution was carried on, in the face of a myriad difficulties, is due to the indefatigable zeal of Dr. Ensor; but even his energy and persistency would have availed nothing, without the help of some Carolina merchants whose hearts were moved by the sad tale which Dr. Ensor told. Conspicuous amongst them was Mr. Edward Hope, of Columbia. This gentleman did not share in the custom of the Asylum when the institution could pay for its supplies. When the pinch came, and every other resource was exhausted, Dr. Ensor, in September last, applied to Mr. Hope for help, saying that he had but "one "day's supplies on hand," and, unless relief were afforded, the day after the morrow would find "nearly four hundred beings in "the Asylum suffering for something to eat." In conclusion Dr. Ensor said: "In the name "of God and humanity, I beg you to help "them, if you can." The reply was worthy of the man and the occasion. Only this: "I will furnish you one month's supplies for humanity's sake, if I never get a cent for "them." The supplies were furnished; but, when they were consumed, there was no improvement in the prospect of the Asylum, and "the possibility of keeping the institu-"tion open any longer appeared to be at an end." Mr. Hope came to the rescue a second time, and furnished Dr. Ensor with supplies for a month more. This kept the Asylum open until the end of the year.

Mr. Hope is a merchant who, in his benevolent works, does not allow his right hand to know what his left hand does; but it is meet that public honor should follow him who, in a time of sore need, is ready to succor the distressed and gives back good

The State Debt.

The Columbia Carolinian calls our attention to the fact that the Carolina National Bank published, in the Carolinian of the 16th, a statement of the bonds and stocks registered in Columbia, amounting to $1,376,726. This makes a total registration of only $2,171,726, out of sixteen millions.

The Columbia Phanix says : "Mr. G. A. 'Neuffer admits that he made a mistake in persons, and that it was not a member of the Legislature who proposed to get his "flour inspector bill through for one thou-"sand dollars."

Poor Patterson.

(From the Richmond Lispatch.) Patterson, the carpet-bagger of South Carolina, who bribed his way to a seat in the Senate, is to be cat-hauled. His credentials are to be referred to the committee of privileges and elections, and the accusation of bribery brought against him is to be investigated. Eillott, the member of the House from South Carolina, who was his competitor for the Senate, is his accuser, and he will follow him up with a malicious energy.

A Contrast.

The Norfolk Juornal institutes some comparisons based on the census between New England and the six Southern States of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virgini counted as one State, North and South Carolina and Georgia. First, as to church accommodations. The church sittings in all New England are given by the census at 2,208,007; those in the six Southern States are given by the same census at 3,600,084. The difference in favor of the Southern States is 1,457,877 sittings, or more than 66 per cent. In all New England there are 5421 churches; in the six Southern States there were, at the same time, 11,567 churches. There is certainly something in this; but the Journal goes further. The white population of New England and the above six Southern States is very nearly equal. The native white paupers in New England numbered, in 1870, twelve thousand nine hundred and seventy-two, or in the proportion of one native pauper for every two hundred and seventeen native whites. In the six Southern States the native white paupers numbered, in 1870, seven thousand and sixty two, or one native white pauper for every four hundred and sixty-eight native whites The percentage of pauperism among native New Englanders was more than double that of Southerners. The same ratio prevalls in crime, the number of criminals in New Engand being again double that of the above States. Certainly New England need not reproach her neighbors.
